INDIGENOUS MICRONESIA vs GLOBAL CLIMATE CHANGE

About this Event

An online and offline international documentary film screening presented by the Rotary Peace Fellowship Association and The Rotary Peace Center at Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok to address the importance of traditional knowledge in the battle to save the planet from environmental break down.

On the pacific island of Yap, Larry and his young crew race to carve an ocean-going canoe to sail to Guam five hundred miles away in time for the Festival of Pacific Arts and Culture. But first they must master the ancient arts of canoe building and traditional wayfinding navigation – piloting the seas without modern instruments. Will this Federated States of Micronesia team make it to the festival in time to deliver a message of warning and hope about the dangers of climate change on their island culture? Find out.
